A Conversation With Artist CJ Chueca | October 2023 by Jamie Martinez

"I have made a variety of ceramic pieces related to first the people who are traveling and their objects and then ceramics about the travel itself like the ongoing series of ceramic airplane windows. If my ceramic pieces were mostly talking about urban life from their own hard materiality, my paintings were talking about the power of nature through representations of water, rivers, waterfalls, oceans, and skies. CJ Chueca: Mermaids in the Basement | November 8, 2023 by Blanca de la Torre

"Ceramic tiled walls have been a constant in the work of C.J. Chueca, always paying homage to the dispossessed, marginalized, and excluded. As Eleanor Heartney points out, 'she loves it for its fragility and stoic endurance and embraces its connection to the troubled lives that it has failed to shelter.'" LINK

7 Breakout Artists To Watch At Art Basel Miami Beach 2022 | December 6, 2022 by Artnet News

"The airplane windows she creates are not imagined. Per each title all correspond with a flight that the artist was on. She creates her color palette not only from what she saw outside of the window, but also the mood she was in while up in the air." LINK
